The law firm of McAngus Goudelock & Courie is excited to announce the results of the third annual Main St. Battle for Blood, held on Tues., Nov. 5 on Main Street in downtown Columbia.

Donors gave 123 total pints of blood at this year's Battle for Blood, which benefitted the American Red Cross Central South Carolina Chapter. The 123 donated pints can potentially save 369 lives. Donors were able to give blood at four different locations on Main St.

"I am very proud of MG&C's commitment to the Midlands community. By being one of the driving forces behind the Main St. Battle for Blood, our employees were able to give the gift of life to someone in need," said Jay Courie, Managing Member of MG&C. "This kind of giving is a cornerstone for our firm."

Sponsors for the Main St. Battle for Blood include McAngus Goudelock & Courie, Nelson Mullins, NBSC, McNair Law Firm, Nexsen Pruet, EDENS, First Citizens and Haynesworth Sinkler Boyd.
