McAngus Goudelock & Courie, a regional insurance defense firm, is pleased to announce the addition of Brian Walthart to the firm's Nashville office. Walthart is the fifth attorney to join the firm's newest office, which opened on March 30.

Walthart's practice focuses on litigation, construction law, civil rights/government, personal injury/wrongful death, family law, product liability, transportation law and premises liability. He received his juris doctor from the University of Memphis, Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law and his bachelor of science degree from Middle Tennessee University. Walthart is a member of the Tennessee Bar Association and the Nashville Bar Association.

"I welcome Brian to the new Nashville team. He brings experience in the insurance defense industry to MGC and we look forward to serving his clients from our newest location," said Jay Courie, MGC's Managing Member.
